In advance of Labor Day 2012 (September 3), U.S. Secretary of Labor Hilda L. Solis, the first Latina to head a major federal agency in a president’s cabinet, will host a webinar to discuss the state of the Latino worker in the United States.

Secretary Solis will discuss the gains that Latinos have made during the economic recovery; specific sectors of growth and opportunities; challenges and prospects for women, veterans and youth; vulnerable workers; and department efforts in worker training and education for the Latino community.

This event is FREE for all attendees.

NOTE: Q&A session open to the public, but questions are limited to working...
Journalists. Reporters must identify themselves and their news organizations when submitting written questions during the webinar. Questions may be submitted ahead of time to danny.selnick@businesswire.com.
